Criminal record for care worker attacked by eight-year-old with broom

A care worker has been given a criminal record and banned from working with children for a year after striking a "physically aggressive" child who was gouging her eyes with a broom.

Monsurat Balogun, 46, was given a community order at court this week after admitting an assault at the Lighthouse Children's Home in Surbiton on August 13, last year, described as "borderline accidental".

The eight-year-old boy, who suffered from learning disabilities, had thrown a tennis ball at Balogun's face and attacked her with a broom after being told twice to apologise.

by HANA HAUSMEISTER

hana.hausmeister@london.newsquest.co.uk

Defence counsel Susanne Cleary said: "The complainant pointed the broom at Mrs Balogun and threatened to poke her eye out.

"He pushed it into her face and into her eye area and ear area.

"He was extremely physically aggressive, throwing a tennis ball at her face. All of the witnesses corroborated that.

"She asked him to stop. Other members of staff also asked him to stop doing this. He did not. He continued. The complainant pointed the broom at Mrs Balogun and threatened to poke her eye out. He pushed it into her face and into her eye area and ear area.

"She asked him to refrain from doing this and he did not. He continued to use the brush to aggressively rub her face.

"She grabbed the broom and unfortunately struck the complainant in his face. She admits she did it by force."

Balogun had been working with the Lighthouse Children's Home in Surbiton for a year before the incident. She had worked with the boy before without any problems.

He attacked staff 34 times while he was at the home, the court heard.

The boy's own grandmother had previously been investigated on suspicion of assaulting him but was not prosecuted, the court heard.

The court heard his parents had also been involved in incidents.

Balogun, from Southwark, wept in court as she was described as being "extremely remorseful".

Andrew Millard, lead magistrate at Lavender Hill Magistrates' Court at the sentencing on June 4, said: "This is an extremely difficult situation. We believe however that the offence of common assault in this case is serious enough for us to make a community order."

She was given a community order for 12 months, during which she must carry out unpaid work and is banned from working with children. She was also fined £145.

Tributes have been paid to a bike and motorcycle enthusiast who was killed while marshalling a cycling road race.

Colin Stent, 54, from Upper Brighton Road, Surbiton, died at the South East Road Race League meeting in Kent on Saturday, May 25.

Mr Stent had been working as a National Escort Group (NEG) rider when his motorcycle collided with a car in Hook Green, Lamberhurst, at 10.35am.

Last week neighbour Scott Morrison paid tribute to Mr Stent.

Mr Morrison, 45, said: "He was just basically a great guy. "He enjoyed life, motorbiking and cycling. He did road and mountain biking.

"He was always friendly and always pleased to chat.

"I am just a bit shocked really. We would have a couple of beers together, and we would always chat at the garage together and at barbecues."

Mr Morrison said he and Mr Stent had been planning to cycle together to Weybridge.

"We were supposed to go cycling this week ironically. I was going to take him down a route that goes down to Weybridge.

"He used to cycle around Richmond Park on his road bike a lot."

South African-born Mr Stent was living in Surbiton with his partner. No one answered at his home on Thursday when contacted by the Kingston Guardian.

Following his death, the three-day cycling event was cancelled out of respect.

British Cycling president

Brian Cookson said: "This is a tragedy which will sadden everyone associated with road racing in this country.

"My thoughts and those of everyone at British Cycling are with the friends and family of the NEG rider."

A spokesman for Kent Police said: "The motorcyclist, a 55-year-old man from Surbiton, had been acting as a road marshal for a regional Road Racing League event involving more than 60 cyclists.

"He suffered serious injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene."

Police are still appealing for witnesses to the event. Call the Serious Collision Unit on 01622 798538 with any information.

Victim is 'making it up as he goes along'

The reliability of a victim allegedly kidnapped and assaulted in a Kingston flat with a heated screwdriver, belt and wrench has been questioned.

Receptionist Vrajesh Yadav, from east London, claims five Kingston University students held him captive and beat him throughout the day at a maisonette flat in Robin Hood Way on November 28, last year.

Mohammed Afzal, 22, from Walsall, Ebrahim Hassan Shaikh, 19, of Wood Street, Kingston, and Rayad Mohammed Miah, 22, from Birmingham deny robbery, kidnap, attempted robbery and attempting to inflict grievous bodily harm.

Gasim Gasim, 22, of Burnham Street, Kingston, denies false imprisonment, attempting to inflict grievous bodily harm while Sooraj Noori, 20, of King Henry's Road, Kingston, denies false imprisonment, attempting to inflict grievous bodily harm and kidnapping.

Giving evidence behind a screen at Kingston Crown Court on Friday, Mr Yadav told the courtroom his ordeal only ended when he managed to convince some of the men to take him to East Ham, where he could give them £1,000 in cash, but instead managed to get away.

He said: "They beat me continuously throughout the day. They were in control of the situation - they were telling me what to do.

"I am pretty much saying anything I can for me to get out of this address."

But Tom Horder, defending Mr Noori, said Mr Yadav had given conflicting accounts about the weapons used in the assault.

He told him: "You are making this up as you go along. You are telling people different things at different times."

The trial continues.

Beady Eye on gig tickets

Liam Gallagher is coming to Kingston for an intimate live gig - but if you do not already have tickets, you are already too late.

The news broke last Monday that the ex-Oasis frontman would be playing McClusky's with his band Beady Eye on Friday, June 7, ahead of the release of new album Be.

The story sparked a stampede for tickets, as fans of the indie icon rushed to secure a place among the crowd.

In less than 30 minutes, all 800 tickets were sold out.

Jon Tolley, manager of Banquet Records in Eden Street, Kingston, which organised the gig, said: "The gig took 30 minutes to sell out - but in truth, that didn't surprise us.

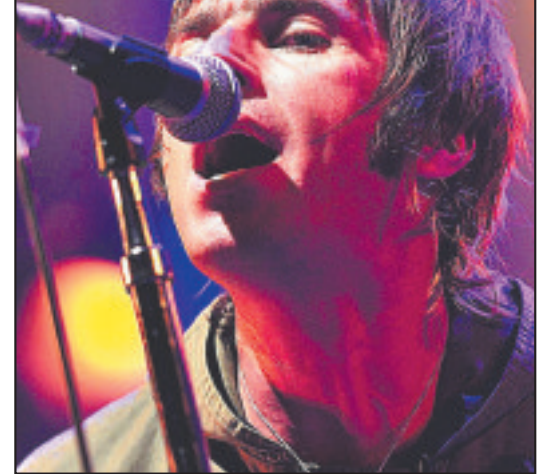

"This is, after all, a massive band featuring members who have played stadia before. This is an incredibly intimate show for a big band on the verge of releasing a new album, so the 800 tickets went in no time.

"It's sure to be a memorable intimate stripped-down gig on June 7, at the home of our regular indie club night New Slang - McClusky's. This is a one-off event on the Friday before the album is released and will be the first time a lot of these songs are played live."

Beady Eye formed in the wake of Oasis's acrimonious split in 2009, when Noel Gallagher, Liam's older brother, walked out on the band.

They released their debut album Different Gear Still Speeding in 2011.

Five on burglary charge

Five men have appeared in court charged with a burglary in New Malden last Thursday.

Daniel O' Brien, 27, from Uxbridge, and Stuart Holman, 25, from Hayes, both denied burglary when they appeared at Lavender Hill Magistrates' Court on Saturday, June 1.

Both were given conditional bail to appear back at the court on June 21.

Two other men, John

Ballingall, 28, of Savoy Avenue, Hayes, and Edmundas Danielkus, 20, of Avondale Drive, also in Hayes, have yet to enter pleas and were remanded in custody.

But Dean Jackson, 25, of Kings Hill Avenue, Hayes, pleaded guilty and will be sentenced at Kingston Crown Court at a later date. He was granted conditional bail.

All five men were arrested on May 23.

Inspectors dish the dirt on where to eat

by JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Thinking of going out for a bite tonight? You might want to choose where you go a bit more carefully.

More than one in 10 food providers in Kingston need to improve hygiene standards – with 78 told by the Food Standards Agency they need urgent or major improvements.

Restaurants such as Priya in Surbiton, Dallas Chicken in Kingston, Spicy Island in New Malden and RAJ Cash and Carry in Tolworth Broadway were among the 13 places to get zero stars out of five.

Another 65 received only one out of five when Kingston Council health inspectors came calling.

But fear not, nearly half of the places in the borough achieved top marks.

Zia Gul, manager of Chic-oland in Kingston, said achieving full marks took a lot of work.

He said: "Everything has to be spotless. They are very strict

The inspections

• Health inspectors look at how food was prepared and stored, how food safety was documented, plus cleanliness and other conditions inside a business.

• Businesses can only be closed if the food is not safe to eat, or there is an imminent risk to health.

• The ratings are updated on the Food Standards Agency website but there is no way to be notified of new inspections so if you are nervous about where you eat, check the site each time or download the app for your phone.

when it comes to inspecting shops, but we have got it twice. We have worked really hard to get that."

Shelly Mahoney, manager of the Playtime Day Nursery in Bridge Road, Chessington, said its one out of five rating was due to the age of the building.

She said: "We just de-cluttered the room a bit more because it is an office as well. We brought a steam cleaner and updated our food policy."

A Kingston Council spokesman said: "Should a business fail to carry out urgent improvements we can take action by serving a hygiene improvement notice."

"Should a business still not comply then we take legal action, which can lead to heavy fines."

Last week consumer group Which? revealed the KT4 post-code – Worcester Park – was the second-dirtiest area in Britain to eat out.

The Duke of York pub in Victoria Road, Surbiton, has turned around its food hygiene standards. It now has a five rating after being slapped with a zero-rating in January.

Landlord Brendan Connolly said the verdict came because the pub lacked a separate area for preparing food.

He said: "Basically we had invested a lot of money and it seems to have worked. It was harsh to get a zero. I took immediate action."

Avoid park, dog owners told

Dog walkers are being advised to walk their pets away from Richmond Park as the deer birthing season begins.

Royal Parks is warning visitors to both Richmond and Bushy Parks that deer can become very aggressive and protective of their newborn fawns, and should consider taking their dogs elsewhere between May and July.

After birth, the young deer are hidden among the bracken and long grass – a playground for inquisitive dogs.

But this year's cold spring has delayed the growth of the bracken, meaning there is even less shelter for the fawns.

Park manager Simon Richards said that dog walkers continuing to use the parks should ensure all animals are on leads and kept at least 50m away from the deer.

He said: "Deer are wild animals and can behave unpredictably."

Prolific: Joan Hickson with her exhibition work; Postman Pat artwork, inset
Deadlinepix WA76632

Second post

by HANA HAUSMEISTER

hana.hausmeister@london.newsquest.co.uk

The original illustrator of Postman Pat is having one of her paintings exhibited at the Royal Academy's summer exhibition – for the second time in her career.

Joan Hickson, 84, from Crescent Road, Kingston, will be displaying a painting of her father and his brother in World War I, at the show in Burlington House.

She said: "There has always been something about the First World War which is quite a powerful thing. The men who were in it hardly ever speak about it, and millions were killed.

"It formed quite a big part of my childhood, even though it finished before I was born. I do not think anyone will forget about it. It had an effect and still does."

Her first painting went on display with the academy in 1947, while she was studying at the Brighton College of Art.

The work was called Head of a Girl, and it was a simple self-portrait.

She said: "I was a great fan of the artist Gwen John, who was and still is a big name. So this influenced the type of painting I did."

Since then she has always worked as an artist, whether illustrating or painting. She lived in Richmond for about 30 years and in Kingston for about 15.

She said she has illustrated about 105 books for the Postman Pat series, as well as comic strips.

Having been to Burlington House frequently since her first painting was displayed, she said she was amazed at how much it has changed.

She said: "Art has just sort of expanded into so many directions, particularly the fact that when I exhibited, art was figurative and representational to a great degree. I know Picasso was around then, but he hadn't started exhibiting in the way he did afterwards.

"Nowadays art is far more open to everyone.

"It will be interesting to go this year."

FRAUDSTER GUILTY:

A 65-year-old woman has admitted wrongfully holding on to more than £63,000 in pension payments for her dead mother.

She is due to be sentenced next month at Kingston Crown Court.

Faiths appeal for unity after Woolwich killing

by JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Faith leaders and community figures in Kingston have united in their condemnation of the killing of a British soldier in Woolwich.

Representatives including Bishop of Kingston Richard Cheetham, Kingston Muslim Association (KMA) trustee Rizwan Khaliq and Kingston police borough commander Ian Smith, met at Kingston mosque to extend solidarity to Woolwich residents following the death of Drummer Lee Rigby, who died in a machete attack in the street on May 22.

They also called for unity among Kingston residents.

In a joint statement the Rev Amanda Beck and Rabbi Charley Baginski, of Kingston Interfaith Forum, said: "As representatives of many of Kingston's faith communities, we deplore the terrible attack that took place in Woolwich.

"All of our religions exalt the sanctity of human life and no grievance could justify such a barbaric assault that has cost a young man his life. Hatred never ceases through hatred."

John Azah, chairman of Kingston Race and Equalities Council (Krec), said: "Krec

Interfaith solidarity: Uniting against hatred implores all communities to stay resolute come together and continue to work positively to support those who feel violated or become fearful as a result of these horrible events.

"At this very difficult time we should work harder to stay united and to resist any attempts by others to pull us apart."

In the days following Drummer Rigby's death, Woolwich has seen protests from far-right group the English Defence League, and a rise in Islamophobic attacks has been reported nationally.

The KMA released a statement on the day of the attack, calling it a "senseless act" that ran "contrary to the fundamental teachings of Islam".

Councillor Derek Osbourne, Kingston Council leader, said: "In Kingston, like the rest of London, we are a diverse community and we are a united community. That unity is what makes our community spirit strong, and we and our partners will go on working as one to embrace equality and to support and protect the community."

Michael Adebowale, 22, from Greenwich, and Michael Adebolajo, 28, from Romford, have been charged with Drummer Rigby's murder.

ASSAULT CHARGE:

A 23-year-old woman will stand trial over an alleged assault in February this year. Courtney Birmingham, 23, from Acacia Grove, New Malden, is accused of beating another woman at Computer Exchange in Wimbledon. Her trial is on July 4, at Wimbledon Magistrates' Court.

SWIM RISK: More than 300 people came down with diarrhoea, vomiting, stomach cramps and nausea after last year's Hampton Court Swim, a report has revealed. Illness hit 338 of the more than 1,000 competitors on October 7, according to the Public Health England report. No single cause was identified but people who swallowed water, were over 40 and wore a wetsuit were all more likely to get ill.

A chance to celebrate

by JON SHARMAN

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Firefighters, Chinese dancers, and a collection of reptiles joined residents at the Celebrating Chessington fair.

Residents braved leaden skies and piled in to the St Mary's Centre and church fields to enjoy a funfair, barbecue and activities such as zumba and football.

Organiser Nathasha Earney said: "In theory in our third year we know what we are doing."

"We have recruited more members of the church to help this year. We are very pleased with it. We get a lot of residents coming back, which is the main thing."

"Everyone knows about it so we try and make sure there are lots of fun things to do but that there are lots of useful agencies who can provide information."

Chessington Councillor Rachel Reid said: "The idea really is to promote resident participation in Chessington South."

"We want to get as many people involved in learning about what is available to them in their neighbourhood."

"Full credit to Saint Mary's Church in terms of on-the-day organisation."

Deputy mayor Alan Dean was also there.

He said: "We are really enjoying ourselves and there are so many people trying to help the community in their various ways."

"We are proud to be part of it. Next year it is going to be a heatwave."

Nine-year-old Shannon Sanders was visiting family in Chessington when she popped along for the day and came face to face with an owl.

She said: "It was a bit scary because he kept staring at me, but it was good because he was really soft."

Car wash flats plan

A car wash in Chessington could be demolished to make way for affordable housing.

The plans for a four-storey block of flats in Bridge Road on the site of the FTJ Car garage are being considered by Kingston Council planning officers.

The application submitted by Paragon Community Housing Group calls for 13 units, ranging in size from one- to three-bedroom flats.

But car wash director Fitim Kingji said he was worried for staff.

He said: "We can't just drop people in the street."

"It is not very good news at all. We have got so many people coming here and they do not want the place to be shut down."

The site, next to Chessington North railway station, was previously targeted for affordable housing in 2008 by the Richmond upon Thames Churches Housing Trust, a Paragon subsidiary.

Good friends: Elle Waddington and Helen Hawcroft

Student's charity swim in best friend's memory

A student from Kingston University is raising money for a cystic fibrosis charity in memory of her friend, writes Eleanor Steafel.

Elle Waddington, 19, will be taking part in the Great North Swim next month in memory of Helen Hawcroft who died from the disease last year.

Elle said: "Helen was a very talented scholar, gaining A*s in all of her A-levels. "She spent a month or so at Durham University when she became very sick."

The pair agreed in the summer of last year that Elle would begin fundraising for the Cystic Fibrosis Trust to help develop medicines and improve Helen's chance of a longer life. But sadly, Helen died in December at the age of 18.

Since then, Elle has kept her promise and will be doing the Great North Swim on June 14. She is hoping to raise £500 and is asking for donations towards the Cystic Fibrosis Trust and Leeds Hospital Charitable Fund, where Helen was cared for.

No site yet for new school

by NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@london.newsquest.co.uk

The backers of a new free school have insisted its doors will be open by September 2014 – even though a suitable site has yet to be found.

A bid by the Chapel Street Community Schools Trust to open a new primary school in Motspur Park, on the border of Kingston and Merton boroughs, was approved by the Department for Education last week.

The Morden-based trust has promised that, when it opens, Raynes Park Community School will be a non-faith school with a Christian ethos with 60 reception places available 15 months from now.

Within seven years the school, which will serve people in Motspur Park, Raynes Park and West Wimbledon, will add 420 primary school places to the mix.

But a site for the proposed school is yet to be found.

A spokesman from the Chapel Street Community Schools Trust said: "The site has yet to be decided. "We are hoping to make the decision as soon as possible.

"We are confident we will be able to find a site. We are confident the site will be acceptable to people."

He said the school would be non-selective and would also cater to special needs pupils.

It will be run with help from Roehampton University, the YMCA, Doxa Deo Church and Raynes Park Community Church, which is based in the same building as the Chapel Street Community Schools Trust.

Chapel Street already runs a secondary school in Wigan, with another due to be opened in Oxford in September.

Earlier this week the Kingston Guardian held a poll on its website asking parents whether they would send their child to a free school.

The results showed 45 per cent would not, 40 per cent would and 15 per cent did not know.

The best in young talent is coming to Kingston. HANA HAUSMEISTER reports

From circus acts to DJs

A back-to-back medley of jugglers, dancers and Glastonbury DJs launched the international youth arts festival in Kingston.

Director Jeremy Sachs highlighted the newest additions to the festival, as crowds got a glimpse into circus acts, plays, acoustic music and hip-hop.

Mr Sachs said: "This time we have tried to get slightly more unconventional spaces.

"We have a festival pub, the Nest, at the Market Place, where you can go and pick up leaflets for shows and buy tickets.

"But also if you wander in there you might catch a small performance.

"And Las Iguanas restaurant will also be doing live music throughout the event."

The festival is in its fifth year, and last year attracted thousands of people, featuring acts from as far as the US and Africa.

Creative Youth director Aniela Zaba said: "We are using every space in Kingston and making retailers feel they can be part of it all."

This year the Bentalls store will be offering department-specific events, such as shadow puppetry in lighting, while the Bentall Centre will play host to aerial shows.

□ The festival runs from July 6 to 28.

THE FUTURE OF LONDON FIRE BRIGADE

London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority is consulting on its Draft Fifth London Safety Plan. You have until 17 June to give us your views.

The plan sets out how the fire and rescue service could be delivered over the next few years. Amongst other things, it includes plans to keep within our target attendance times for getting to incidents and details how savings worth £28.8m could be made. These proposals also involve the closure of 12 fire stations, the removal of 18 fire engines, the redeployment of four fire engines and a reduction in the number of firefighter posts of 520.

Dentures? Missing Teeth? ...Have you heard about fixed teeth in a day?

Imagine no movement of dentures, no palate, and no obstructions!
NO PROBLEM.....

Our guess is, if you currently wear dentures or have missing teeth you would do anything to have fixed teeth again - well you can! The Denture and Implant Clinic offers the latest revolutionary techniques which are fast becoming the new way to solve missing teeth problems!

Confidence to eat and enjoy your food!

The Denture and Implant Clinic's founder Dr Justin Stewart was the first bio-functional prosthetic system qualified dental surgeon in the UK. He continued his studies determined to find better solutions for people with missing teeth and although Dr Stewart no longer practices, the clinic offers this amazing solution 'Fixed teeth' through his highly trained team.

Amazing Solutions for missing teeth

This amazing solution has been developed to allow implants to be placed in the upper or lower arch in the mouth (or both) and a bridge is fixed onto the implants which is secure leaving you confident in the knowledge that your teeth will not move. 'Fixed Teeth' is a fantastic solution for patients who are unhappy with their dentures or have been told they need dentures and want to avoid them. Our patients comment on how confident they feel after the procedure, knowing their teeth will not fall down or worse, fall out, during a conversation. The treatment means that patients can taste their food again...they have their palate back! The clinic receives numerous patients who were putting off having dentures and living in misery with painful teeth but are now pain free and happy, in some cases happier with their new smile than they were with their original smile!

Visit www.thedentureandimplantclinic.co.uk and read the success stories, you will be amazed!

Teeth being secured in the mouth

The clinic have a highly experienced and dedicated team, and each team member plays a part in ensuring the care the patient receives is an enjoyable experience. The Denture and Implant Clinic has its own dental laboratory on site. Patients will also be encouraged to bring in photographs of when they had their own teeth, and those photos are used during the reconstruction of the final bridge to perfectly replicate the smile that the patient once had.

Smile Advisor, Jennie Baker at The Denture and Implant Clinics says, "This really is an amazing new technique that will change people's lives. Living with 'False teeth' can be upsetting and difficult. Over the years we have encountered every conceivable problem patients endure, but this new fixed procedure allows patients to forget they ever wore dentures, leaving them free to enjoy their lives and have the confidence that we offer - a 100% guarantee with all our treatment!"

Police officers do not sit around playing Angry Birds

I wish to respond to your article about the decline in police officer numbers, and in particular to London Assembly member Tony Arbour's comments (Service same despite fewer cops, May 30).

I would like to challenge his statement: "The decline in police officers is also related to what the police officers actually do. It does not matter how many you have got, if they are all sitting in the office playing Angry Birds."

This Government required the Metropolitan Police Service (MPS) to cut £500m from its budget over three years.

That is a massive cut for any organisation to endure and in order to make these savings the MPS are reducing their estate rather than cutting constable numbers. This reduction means officers, even those who are office-based, have to share computer facilities. To suggest that officers have the time or inclination to play Angry Birds at work is cheap and insulting.

Typically Metropolitan Police officers strive to serve the public to the best of their ability, despite the cuts they are enduring to the service and to the officer's pay and pensions.

A more typical portrait of a Met Police officer was shown by officers responding to recent events in Woolwich.

GILL BARRATT
Vice-chairwoman

Met Police Federation

An ill-judged remark

I was shocked by London Assembly member Tony Arbour's comments (Service same despite fewer cops, May 30).

Regarding the loss of police officers, Mr Arbour said: "It does not matter how many you have got, if they are all sitting in the office playing Angry Birds."

This is an ill-judged and derogatory comment to make about police officers who serve the community.

Mr Arbour should have more respect for what is fast becoming an overstretched police service.

The cuts to the Met Police are being made because the Mayor and Government have cut the police budget.

Since May 2010 London has lost 2,900 police officers.

Rather than insulting the people who help keep us all safe, Mr Arbour should be supporting our calls for the Mayor and Government to stop cutting police officers from the front line. The police officers I have met work extremely hard and to suggest otherwise is crude and offensive.

Expect a bigger home Listen to the people who use our unique market

I believe society must home those in need. However, a minority of council tenants continue to expand their families in spite of not having enough room for the family they already have.

Then they expect the council to give them another. Only bigger. Sort your priorities and earn your home.

STEPHEN LAKE
Teddington

We are in total shock and feeling absolutely bereaved.

The horror of Kingston First's mindless, ruthless, so clever and lucrative planning for our market has suddenly come to light with the closure of three historic untrendy, non-food market stalls. The heartless, cruel way those closures have been implemented is beyond belief. Three people have lost their livelihood. We hang our heads in shame.

Ours was such a unique market – we moved from Molesey to be near it; we boasted about it, we had to pinch ourselves that such a daily market still existed. Too good to be true we now realise. It is about to be "modernised and beautified". Please, please think again. Listen to the people who live here and use the market.

ANGELA and TIM COMBE
Kingston

Policy driven by those who want to prettify the area

I could not agree more with the overwhelming sentiment expressed by your correspondents that the decision to remove a diversity of stalls is yet another retrograde step in the history of our ancient market. The people who have made this decision do not understand what a real market is.

This is an attempt to tidy up or sanitise an area of our town that needs more diversity not less.

This policy is driven by those who want to prettify the market whereas most of us who use it regularly want real stalls serving real people.

DECLAN TERRY

Greenway is not green

I wonder if Kingston Council can see the irony in chopping down trees to build Tolworth's new Greenway.

That, and reducing the planned number of trees from 60 to 50.

At this rate the only thing green about the project will be the shade of paint they use to colour the central concrete walkway.

LEARNING FOR LIFE

Earn more with a masters

Recent research from the Sutton Trust has revealed that those with a master's degree earn on average £5,500 more per year, or more than £200,000 over a 40 year working life, than someone holding only a bachelor's degree.

But the value of a postgraduate degree should never be measured by financial return on investment alone.

Experience tells us that people choose to undertake postgraduate study for a number of reasons though – not simply a salary boost.

These tend to revolve around career enhancement or change, a desire to start a business or perform better in their current role. As a graduate once told me "it's amazing how your opinion is taken more seriously with letters after your name."

Staff from Kingston Business School and Kingston Law School are constantly impressed by the variety of backgrounds of visitors to our open days and their motivations for undertaking a postgraduate course.

On the one hand we speak with graduates of non-business disciplines who want to embark on a business track or are taking on a management role. Then there are people with work experience who want to drive their careers forward.

We also see business

Professor Jean Noel Ezingear, dean of the faculty of business and law, at Kingston University looks at the value of a postgraduate degree and law practitioners who want to combine work and study and implement what they learn at Kingston at the weekend into their jobs on the following Monday. Suffice to say that these people often find themselves promoted pretty quickly too.

Our courses also include conversion programmes, for instance for those who are those looking to enter the legal profession by studying Kingston Law School's Postgraduate Diploma in Law.

This course is for non-law graduates so students come from backgrounds as diverse as humanities and social science graduates, journalists and engineers – we currently even have a GP on the course.

Open days are a great way to find out about the culture of Kingston – much more than you can get simply from a website and you can get some tips on how to approach your application.

I would encourage anyone interested in enhancing their career to come along to our open days and talk with our academics who will share their passion for their subject, and help you work through how a Kingston business or law postgraduate qualification can help you.

Open days are a great way to find out about the culture of Kingston Business School and Law School

Jurassic lark

Grunge band Dinosaur Pile-Up head to Kingston next week for a gig celebrating the launch of their new album.

The Yorkshire three-piece will be at McClusky's, in Thames Street, for Banquet Records' weekly New Slang night.

The show takes place the week before new album Nature Nurture – the hotly-anticipated follow-up to 2010's Growing Pains – is released.

The band have already released a video for new track Derail – starring former X Factor contestant Diana Vickers.

Banquet Records manager Jon Tolley said: "Dinosaur Pile-Up are renowned for an impressive live show with plenty of heavy riffs and contrasting melodies and an energy that is bound to be contagious."

SPOT ON

Get your party hats on for a show that is bound to set tails wagging – Spot the Dog is coming to the Rose Theatre, writes Jon Sharman.

Kids and parents can help the much-loved pup celebrate his 32nd birthday with songs, a rabbit magician, and more.

Spot has also invited his friends Steve the monkey, Helen the hippo, and Tom the crocodile, to share the fun.

Eric Hill's early-years favourite was adapted for the stage by children's theatre veteran David Wood. The show is touring again for the first time in eight years.

Wood says: "It is very much a family show, in the sense that it is a birthday party and children are encouraged to come dressed for a party.

"There are games so that you get the whole audience playing musical statues.

"They are guests at the party so they join in quite a lot of things. The whole thing is audience participation to a great degree – it is a communal experience.

Wood has brought classics such as Babe the Sheep-Pig and Tom's Mid-night Garden to theatres around the country. He says the business of keeping children entertained is its own reward.

He says: "The challenge is what keeps me going. Finding ways to rivet those children to their seating wanting to know what happens next, and enjoy engaging with the characters.

"It is a very rewarding area – it is very exciting when you get it right."

Wood adds: "There has been an explosion in shows for this age group and the Rose have made a big thing of doing these shows for young children. I think it is an admirable thing that the Rose does.

"They feel that young children are very important in their programming."

TV expert's top tips on getting plans approved

Make sure you get your neighbours on board if you are applying for planning permission to build an extension, make changes to your home or indeed build your own.

That's the advice of TV property guru Michael Holmes who is one of the experts who will be on hand to advise visitors to the Southern Homebuilding & Renovating Show on Saturday, June 29 and Sunday, June 30 at Sandown Park, Esher.

He says: "Applying for planning permission can be a daunting experience, but it needn't be that way if some thought is put into potential pitfalls that can be avoided," says Michael Holmes, spokesperson for the shows.

Holmes outlines 10 things to ensure applying for Homebuilding show has advice on renovating planning permission is a smooth process. He says:

1. Approach neighbours before submitting your application. Try and consult them early on and discuss your ideas and try to get them onside. It will help if they do not object. Take on board their view as far as is reasonable.

2. Remember, planning is politics, so you need to campaign for your cause. Approach the council with your plans early on, at around the time you are ready to apply and try and get their support for the scheme. Take on board their views if possible and be prepared to show some compromise.

3. Take pre-application advice from the planning department early on to avoid aborted design fees.

Take onboard local planning policy, but look for precedents that may support your application. Planning policy is guidance only, and rules can be stretched and manipulated.

4. Applications for listed building consent should always involve professional planning advice, and may need advice from an historic building consultant. Identifying all repairs (standard rate VAT) and all alterations (zero rate VAT) can help reduce costs by minimising VAT.

5. It can pay to apply for a little more than you really want or expect to build so that you have something to sacrifice should you need to compromise.

6. Don't make any contentious applications around the time of local or national elections. No one wants to stick their neck out to support a scheme that will be unpopular with the local community.

7. If your scheme is recommended by the planning officers for refusal, withdrawing the application and making some amendments can be a better tactic than allowing it to be refused and then trying to appeal. Don't waste time and money fighting a hopeless cause.

8. Take a tactical approach. If one or two aspects of the design are contentious, remove them, get approval for the main scheme, and then re-apply for the more controversial aspects later – there is no fee for reapplying the first time. You could also apply for minor amendments to the scheme by writing to the local authority.

9. Consider combining what you can achieve using Permitted Development Rights (www.planningportal.gov.uk).

10. If the application is contentious, get the advice of a professional planning consultant. Subtle differences in approach or wording can make all of the difference, and secure success rather than refusal, and unlock the true value of your property.

Park miss out on last-ball drama

Worcester Park are bottom of Surrey Championship Division Two after a last-ball seven-wicket defeat at home to Esher.

After electing to bat, Park carded 263-5 off their 50 overs – Joe Hill (79) and Rob Hill, pictured, (58) starred.

In reply, Esher opener Mark Hopkinson hit 145 off 150 balls before being run out hunting the final runs needed for victory.

However, that job fell to John Mason, who hit the winning runs off the last ball for 264-3.

Worcester Park travel to Pyrford this weekend.

Tolfs: One more shot for Ks boss

Kingstonian goalkeeper Rob Tolfrey has hinted that boss Alan Dowson is building up for one last shot at promotion from the Ryman Premier.

The shot-stopper, who was named supporters' player of the season for the second time in three years after some stellar performances last term, has also committed himself to the Ks for another season.

But after a season of ultimate disappointment, which saw Ks finish 11th in the table, Tolfrey believes Dowson, who took over at Kingsmeadow in 2007, will have one more go.

He said: "Alan and I spoke before he went on holiday last week and he said he would give it one more year and give it a real good go.

"He wants to build the best team that he can, and I am hoping to be a part of that."

He added: "I think he will be talking to the guys when he gets back, and then we'll see."

Tolfrey joined the Dowson era for the start of the 2009 season, and immediately became a fans' favourite, confirmed by the supporters' award.

He said: "I must be doing something right to win twice in three years.

"But I have been kept very busy this season, so the fans have seen a lot of me in action."

While Tolfrey, pictured, has committed his future to the club, and Simon Huckle had all-but joined Met Police, the fate of Tolfrey's other teammates is less clear.

He said: "Players come and go, that is part of football. I really hope to be here come next season, and I know when Alan gets back he will start building his side.

"But sometimes a side built in pre-season does not even make the start of pre-season because players come and go all the time, especially in non-League football."

He added: "But for me, I want to stay and I am looking forward to next season."

Romero turns hatred into positive message

by ZOE WOODBRIDGE

sports@london.newsquest.co.uk

in their nets.

"And people in the house boats just thought we were a disturbance and a nuisance. They all pretty much hated us, it was challenging."

Maybe it was these encounters that led Romero to front London Cycle Sportive, a cycling event around London that aims to raise money for the charity Access Sports.

"Lots of people don't have inspiration or encouragement. My talent could have gone undiscovered if it wasn't for volunteers," she said.

"Access Sport gives children the chance to try new things and discover new talents. It gives the disadvantaged the opportunity to try."

Growing up in Wallington, Romero, was always familiar with the Surrey landscape, often riding her bike around Richmond Park, and it was not until she was 17 that she decided to try rowing.

She said: "I was always keen at sports but it wasn't until I moved to Twickenham that I made use of the river nearby.

"I just looked at the yellow pages and found the Kingston Rowing Club. It just so happened that it was one of the most successful rowing clubs for women. It was just fate. My club coach identified talent in me and put his own personal money and time into me.

"For most athletes it's about the everyday person and volunteers that change your life. That's why I work with London Cycle Sportive, because of the difference it can make."

Rebecca continued rowing and went on to win silver at the 2004 Athens Olympics in the quadruple sculls, before returning to the saddle.

She said: "My experience of getting into rowing is what made me want to become an ambassador for London Cycle Sportive and because I'm a cyclist from London."

And for Romero the message is clear: "Not being scared of trying something new is important.

"It doesn't matter if you fail because you learn. It's never too late."

Rebecca Romero is an ambassador for Access Sport who are the official charity partner of the London Cycle Sportive which takes place on June 30 and ends with a lap of honour in Herne Hill Velodrome. To register for your place check out www.humanrace.co.uk.

Harriers the masters of the track and field

Robert Lowe of Kingston AC & Polytechnic Harriers won a hat-trick of gold medals on Saturday at the Surrey & Sussex Masters Championships in Ewell.

Lowe, competing in the M45 age group, was strongest in the throws winning the javelin (27.72m) and discus (21.09m), as well as the long jump (3.64m).

Kingston won eight gold medals overall, which included Andrew Gordon's winning throw of 34.49m in the M35 javelin.

On the track, Clare Nelson won double gold, clocking 15.9 seconds to win the W45 100m, followed by victory in the 200m (33.5secs).

Adam Bellis, pictured, also won double track gold, having taken the M35 200m (23.6secs), he then won the 400m 51.9secs.

Onslow-Cole up for BTCC

New Malden motorhead Tom Onslow-Cole is back behind the wheel this weekend as the British Touring Car Championships rolls into Oulton Park this weekend.

The 25-year-old's season took off in the last round at Thruxton with two podium finishes, leaving him ninth in the standings.

Oulton Park presents a different challenge to the sweeping Thruxton circuit.

Onslow-Cole said: "Oulton Park is a far more intricate circuit than Thruxton, and does not really suit the car, but we've had time to work on it.

"But Thruxton was a good weekend and we are very pleased with the progress the car is making."

Next stop Europe: Royal Park U8s

Royal Park's Euro joy

Youngsters from Royal Park U8s took to the pitches at the Olympic Park to represent Surrey in the UEFA Champions League Festival on Sunday.

They faced neighbouring county FAs from London, Middlesex and the AFA, playing on the same pitch that hosted Champions League legends Cafu and Luis Figo earlier in the weekend.

Manager Kerstan Mackness boss: "The boys had an amazing day and said they felt like proper footballers playing in front of a large crowd – people were clapping and cheering."

SPORTSbrief

CRICKET: Imran Khalid (67) and Sajjad Ali (63) hit half-centuries as Kingstonian beat Maori Oxshott by 49 runs in Division Four of the Surrey Championship. Ks set a target of 275, but Oxshott were skittled for 224 – Waseem Khalid's 2-35 off 10 overs the stand-out figures. Elsewhere, Malden Wanderers beat East Molesey at home by five wickets to claim their first Premier Division win of the season.

FOOTBALL: Kingstonian season tickets are now on sale, costing £190 for adults, while seniors (60 and over/disabled) will pay £133, and students £40. An early bird special promotion on tickets purchased before the end of June will be valid for three pre-season friendlies at Kingsmeadow. For an application form, go to Kingstonian.com.

FOOTBALL: Corinthian Casuals U12s are looking for new players for the Championship Division of the Surrey Youth League. The club play in Tolworth, but train in Carshalton. For more details, call Kenny Hope on 07963 140288.

PARKRUN: James Ruskin of Stragglers AC won the Kingston meeting in 17 minutes, 46 seconds, ahead of clubmates Crispin Allen (18:37) and Roy Reeder (18:55). At the Braunstone meeting in Leicester, Stragglers' Claire Bond was the first lady home in 19:10.
